"A boy of twenty-three," Kalens had said a few minutes previously. "Who was entrusted to us as a child to be given a chance to live a life of opportunity on a new world free of chains and fetters . . . to live his life with pride and dignity as God intended-cut down when he had barely glimpsed that world or breathed its air. Bruce Wilson did not die yesterday. His life ended when he was three years old." -Although everybody had been expecting the announcement, a tension had been building as the room waited for the words that would confirm the expectations. Now that the words had been said, the tension released itself in a ripple of murmurs accompanied by the rustle of papers, and the creaks of chain as bodies unfolded into easier postures. evening?" "Is that a proposal?" Wellesley asked. "You're proposing to plan for contingencies involving a first use of force?" Micky had drawn herself to the unpleasant conclusion that her life to date had been wasted and that she was us."

-Jay and Colman stared at each other as they both came to the same, obvious conclusion at the same time. "That's it," Jay murmured. "That's right-Michigan. I think I was something of a not-very-welcome accident. My mother liked the fun life-lots of boyfriends, and staying out all night and stuff. I guess I was in the way a lot of the time." Celia smiled over her glass. "Thank you. It's rare to find such appreciation." Understanding its new master's intent, the dog springs into the cargo bed of the truck, landing so lightly.
