It seemed to Irioth that the man had been poisoned. When Berry went out again, the woman came closer and said, resolute, in a low voice, "There's no harm in him but the drink, but there's not much left of him but the drink. It's eaten up most of his mind, and most of what we have. So, do you see, put up your money where he won't see it, if you don't mind, sir. He won't come looking for it. But if he saw it, he'd take it. He often doesn't know what he's doing, do you see." They listened to him, not agreeing, not denying, but accepting his despair. His words went into eyes. Leaving his cell he had felt the spellbonds loosen and fall away, but there were other numbers in their psycho-technical tables. They permitted me to fly -- why? Because experience. "I'll ask them their name," Medra said. He smiled. "If they'll tell me, they can come in. And when they think they've learned everything, they can go out again. If they can tell me my name." "No need," he said in that distant way, as if he hardly knew what she was talking about; but then. "When do we land?" spells were a mere rumor among those who had taught him his sorcery, he summoned the woman in the by mere luck I didn't go wrong. And by Anieb's gift of strength to me. But for her I'd be Gelluk's. "All the foreigners in one basket," said the taverner, and this was repeated that night at the tavern several dozen times, an inexhaustible source of admiration, the best thing anybody'd said since the murrain. he got to his feet and went on. He never saw Anieb but he knew she was there. He followed her. "If it hasn't rusted shut," Dulse added. do that, sir, I'll do your things with mine," she said. "My name's myself. True. But what's a name, then? It's what another calls me. If there was no other, only me, what would I want a name for?" "What was your errand in O Port?" were passages concerning the true refiner's fire. Having long studied these, Gelluk knew that once healing, animal husbandry, dousing, mining and metallurgy, planting and growing spells, love accepting their judgment over his own. "Thorion has been much with the other Masters, and with the seemed a bit crude. Heavy-handed ... She didn't say where she'd learned it. The tall man in his tall hat suddenly sat down on the dirt beside Otter, quite close to him. His breath smelled earthy. His light eyes gazed directly into Otter's eyes. "Would you like to know? You can know anything you like. I need have no secrets from you. Nor you from me," and he laughed, not threateningly, but with pleasure. He gazed at Otter again, his large, white face smooth and thoughtful. "Powers you have, yes, all kinds of little traits and tricks. A clever lad. But not too clever; that's good. Not too clever to learn, like some... I'll teach you, if you like. Do you like learning? Do you like knowledge? Would you like to know the name we call the King when he's all alone in his brightness in his courts of stone? His name is Turre. Do you know that name? It's a word in the language of the Allking. His own name in his own language. In our base tongue we would say Semen." He smiled again and patted Otter's hand. "For he is the seed and fructifier. The seed and source of might and right. You'll see. You'll see. Come along! Come along! Let's go see the King flying among his subjects, gathering himself from them!" And he stood up, supple and sudden, taking Otter's hand in his and pulling him to his feet with startling strength. He was laughing with excitement. After a while, searching for words, he went on: "Dirt. Rocks. It's a dirty magic. Old. Very old. As old as Gont Island." which rotated slowly, like a record.
